

Martha Brown is an attorney and partner in the law firm of Martha C. Brown & Associates, LLC in St. Louis, Missouri. Her areas of concentration are: Elder Law; Medicaid Planning, Estate Planning, Probate Administration (including Guardianship and Conservatorship matters), and Special Needs Trusts. Ms. Brown is a Certified Elder Law Attorney as certified by the National Elder Law Foundation. Ms. Brown is a fellow of the American College of Trusts and Estates Counsel (ACTEC), and the National Academy of Elder Law Attorneys (NAELA). Ms. Brown frequently speaks on legal issues concerning the elderly and the disabled.

Abby Cooper currently is a full time consultant working on policies and issues to expand customized employment and individuals with disability to be economically self-sufficient. Ms. Cooper holds a Masters Degree in Organizational Management and teaches part time at Western Washington University. Ms. Cooper designed and implemented the first community-based supported employment program in Washington State. As administrator of the Washington State Division of Vocational Rehabilitation (DVR), she managed the Business Relations Team working with public and private employers, managed independent living services, developed and managed the Division's systems, training criteria, and infrastructure for Ticket to Work. She has published numerous articles ranging in topics from: Integrated Employment for people with severe physical disabilities, entrepreneurship and rehabilitation, the impact of informed choice on community providers, economic self-sufficiency for individuals with disabilities and the relationship of supported employment services on broader employment policy.

Stephen W. Dale received his law degree from Armstrong Law School and his L.L.M. in Taxation from Golden Gate University. His law firm is dedicated to providing top quality estate planning to clients by working cooperatively with the client's tax, financial and insurance professionals. A major focus of Mr. Dale's practice has been the unique needs of persons with disabilities and the elderly. His interest in the specialized field began as a licensed psychiatric nurse working in State Hospitals and community programs caring for psychiatric patients, persons with severe developmental disabilities and the elderly. He regularly teaches courses to the public, financial professionals, and other attorneys on Special Needs Trusts and trust administration with a special emphasis on achieving independence while maintaining essential government benefits.

A. Kimberly Dayton is the Director of the Center for Elder Justice and Policy. Professor Dayton earned a J.D. from the University of Michigan, Ann Arbor. She is currently a Professor of Law at the William Mitchell College of Law. The National Elder Law Network Web site was created by Professor Dayton in 1995 to provide free resources regarding elder law issues for seniors, and their families and advocates (www.neln.org).

Barbara Isenhour graduated from the University Of Washington School Of Law in 1973 and was a staff attorney with legal aid in Seattle, Washington for 24 years. Since 1996 she and another legal aid attorney formed their own law firm, continuing to practice in the areas of elder law and special needs planning. She is a member of the Special Needs Alliance and NAELA and speaks regularly around the state of Washington on special needs trusts and elder law issues.